

It was David's turn in the kitchen, and he absolutely smashed it! Dinner was mashed potatoes and meatballs pure comfort food and a total crowd-pleaser. The plates were cleared in no time, everyone went back for seconds, and there were plenty of happy tummies all around.

Ka pai, David, Gordon Ramsay better watch out, there's a new chef cooking up a storm

While the sun was shining, Paul and Ollie made the most of it with a trip to the beach. Ollie didn't have to spin any tall tales this time, he landed the granddaddy of all snapper! What a catch! Looks like the crew will be well-fed for a while after that one.

Ollie, talk about catching dinner and bragging rights!

Craig had an awesome weekend, his dad came to visit, and you couldn't wipe the smile off his face! He was so stoked to show his dad around his new pad and, of course, his brand new set of wheels. The pair went for a cruise, with Dad jumping on Craig's bike for a spin and by the looks of it, he didn't want to get off!

It was such a special day, filled with laughs, stories, and good vibes. You could really see the pride in Craig's eyes, getting to share all the cool things he's been up to. He rā pai rawa atu! (What an awesome day!)

Ka rawe, Craig so good to see you enjoying time with your whānau and showing off those flash new wheels!

Marie took some of the day programme crew along to Central Day in Dargaville, and what a day it was! They got to pat some adorable calves and lambs, soak up the atmosphere, and cheer on the children during prize giving.

It was smiles all around, and a wonderful chance to celebrate the kids' achievements and enjoy a bit of country charm.

While the days are growing longer and warmer, Jo is starting to take Churchill out to soak in the sun and hit the streets in strides, walking around 2.5kms and they will improve as the weeks progress. Dillon missed out on this walk but will join in next week.
