Last week, the depot got a very exciting new addition to the team! Ollie, Christo, and Roxanne hit the road to pick up our newest "toy," and judging by the smiles around the yard, it was well worth the trip.

It's been sitting proudly in the depot for just over a week now, and we are all absolutely loving it. There has been plenty of excitement, and more than a few people finding reasons to wander past for another look. Safe to say it's already become the star of the yard!

So, if you happen to see us cruising around town looking like we're having way too much fun, don't be surprised. Yes, those cool cats are us!

We're looking forward to putting our new toy to good use and seeing all the ways it can help us keep doing what we do best.

It Might Be Pouring, But We Definitely Aren't Snoring, rather than letting the gloomy weather dampen our spirits, we've been making the most of it with plenty of fun activities and singing karaoke. The smell of freshly baked cupcakes drifted through the building while puzzle enthusiasts put their teamwork and problem-solving skills to the test. Others got creative with sewing projects.

Of course, one of the best things about rainy days is having extra time to simply enjoy each other's company. There were plenty of laughs, good chats, cups of tea, and moments spent hanging out together and singing their hearts out. While the weather outside may have been grey, inside was full of warmth, friendship, and fun. It's days like these that remind us that sometimes the best memories are made when everyone comes together, rain or shine.

After all, when you've got great friends, delicious baking, and plenty to keep you busy, a rainy day doesn't seem so bad at all!
